When the men wrote a letter of protest to the jailer of Henderson County, the jailer called the men to his office and questioned them. He told the men that abortion was contrary to the law, and that he would be happy to see the legal ramification of their letter. "I'm not going to do it," one man responded. So the men decided to go to a higher authority. They called the office of the district attorney of Henderson County, the attorney general and the district judge. The D.A. refused to arrest them, but the two state lawyers took the case. COURT CASE On June 10, 1998, David Smith and Doug Dunn were indicted by a grand jury on four counts of criminal nonsupport. According to the indictment, on May 19, 1998, Smith was ordered by an Ohio judge to pay $33.16 per week to Bethany Barnett, his illegitimate daughter. He allegedly failed to do so from May 26, 1998, until he was indicted. Smith told police that he had been living in Ohio and Tennessee for the past four years and had last spoken with Barnett in 1996, when she was in Ohio. He said that he 2d92ce491b
