His father was Lyman Cowles, a prominent and wealthy businessman who was one of the founders of the town of Norwalk and served as one of its first selectmen. His mother was Elizabeth (Hallet) Cowles, daughter of the Reverend Jonathan Hallet of New Haven. Her father, a wealthy and prominent minister, was the son of an English immigrant who arrived in Massachusetts in 1638. Her paternal grandparents, John and Sarah Hallet, had emigrated from England in 1630. Cowles graduated from Yale College in 1756 and from Harvard Law School in 1760. He was named to the Connecticut Council in 1763, and later that year was made a justice of the New Haven Colony court of common pleas. Elected to the Continental Congress in 1776, he served as a delegate from Connecticut to the Continental Congress

An enhancer in the rump of the Xenopus laevis embryo, when the activated region is stably integrated into an unrelated chromosome, is capable of eliciting a transcriptional response in a 100-fold higher concentration than the wild-type rump. We show that the enhancer resides in the 5' flanking sequence of the coregulated alpha-tubulin and beta-actin genes. The activity of the enhancer is localized to the anterior region of the embryo, at the anterior end of the mesoderm and overlying ectoderm. The activity increases transiently during early gastrula stages, declines when the germ layers are organized, and is active in the most anterior of the future
