After talking with Graitec Advance Steel technical support, I found that the only way to prevent my system from crashing during the time using .NET SDK is to use the .Net SDK. I don't see any support from Graitec Advance C#. Is it possible to include the .NET SDK inside the application, the same way it is suggested for the Silverlight integration with Microsoft? I should mention that I don't need any graphical or complex graphics capabilities. I just want the system to work as a file viewer and not have to depend on Windows
