The application it's self is a lightweight program and there is no configuration or user interface, you can move around the menu and have your screen brightness adjusted from anywhere you want with either hotkeys or transp. The application will work for Windows XP and Windows 2000. TransXP Description: The application it self is an enhanced version of GlareXPA. You can move about the program by using hot keys or mouse, and control what windows can be transparent with the mouse or hotkey. The hotkeys are "Win+Left" and "Win+Right" and transp, transxp(classic), transxp(aero) and transxp(classic) are workable windows managers. Installation Method: Download the file "transp-setup.exe" to the following directory: app-suibin\ Note: you need to have administrative privileges. After installing, open up your startup folder and double click on "transxp.cpl" icon located there. A new control panel window will show up with the application. MammaGamma Crack has created there's a "hotkey" system and hotkeys are bound to specific hotkey or keys as you use them. To "bind" the "Hotkey" you just click the button that looks like a hotkey and type in your hotkey. By default the hotkey is bound to Alt+Key, just like in windows 7. But this can be changed by going into the "Hotkey Window" and clicking the "Bind" button. You can also bind the hotkey to "Win+Up and Win+Down" as well. You can also set hotkeys for transp. By default they are Alt+D and Alt+E Usage Instructions: The best way to tell how to use this is by doing a couple test. Just click the hotkey, move the mouse, look for the text boxes with the word "Brightness". You can adjust your screen brightness by moving the slider there. As you move the slider, you will see how your screen changes from bright to dark. I will not go into the screen brightness adjustment if you don't want to. There are other applications that can do the same thing. You can also change from the HKEY_CURRENT_USER\Software\Microsoft\Windows\CurrentVersion\Themes\Color 09e8f5149f
