

Each of your delicious opinions wins. Everyone knows that people don't change: but I know that the man who says he has changed will never really change If a man wants to work, there are plenty of ways to get him interested, and if he doesn't want to work, there are also plenty of ways to get him interested. But if a person wants to work, and not to create the appearance of work - there is only one way - to force. But not by force, but by something else, something more pleasant. There is such a The topic of how you can find a guy because of his looks and build a serious relationship on that. Personally for me this is a very strange question. In my opinion, it's very important how you feel and in what environment. Appearance is not a guarantee that you will be loved and respected. Although I'm 22, I can not imagine how you can love a man who I absolutely do not like the look, but only internally. I, for example, have a friend. Very beautiful, slim, with long hair, a beautiful smile. In principle, there is something to love. But there is one huge minus-she is very jealous, I do not even know how to explain this feeling, if she is not jealous, then she suspects something, very often her suspicions are not justified, but no, she still suspects something, invents something, etc. In general, if she is not jealous, she does not see anything, but if you are jealous, then she can give you a complete mess, up to and including leaving you to fend for yourself without support, help, etc. Also she has a very bad character, she is very selfish and sometimes just a bitch, although outwardly always smiling, but I think I could not live together with such a bitch, I do not even know how to treat it, I never wanted and do not want to rule over her How can you love a bitch? She's a bitch! bitch! It's impossible to communicate with her! Why does she have so many fans? Why is she so beautiful? Why doesn't she listen to me? Why is she so... And so on and so forth. She's a bitch - that's the word on my tongue, and that's the word that's always going around in my head - bitch. ¶ she's a bitch is the first thing I hear ¶ I hate that word bitch and I'm annoyed by that word bitch. Yes, I can't stand that word - bitch - and frankly, I hate people who say it. The hatred in this case is not against people, but against word formation. It is precisely because of word formation that people feel contempt, hatred, disgust for one another. Well, can you yourself imagine a person who hates the word "bitch," which he finds humiliating and insulting. So, I don't like people with the word "bitch" in their vocabulary: Why do people love the word "bitch"? Yes, because it's demeaning. It hints that the woman who responds to it is kind of out of her mind. And the word has nothing to do with anger, everything to do with callousness. "Bitch" - It means only one thing: a woman who loves, appreciates, respects and, not dare I say it, adores the man. And it doesn't matter what meaning is put into the word by the man she loves. And it does not matter what he thinks about it the man himself. Now, pay attention! Why do men who can and love to give women flowers, do it so rarely? I found the answer to this question in a wonderful book "I love to give flowers" by Marina Markova. "Why do men give flowers so rarely? Because flowers - it is too common! After all, they do not talk about love, they do not try to say something important or mysterious, they do not require a woman's thoughts or feelings. Flowers are just flowers! And if a woman understands that the man gives her flowers, it means that he is not indifferent to her, he wants her, he trusts her, he believes in her, he loves her. (Konstantin Khabensky) And although autumn is outside and cold weather is coming, we want to present you these beautiful flowers also because of this! If you have an opportunity to buy not one, but two bouquets, we'll be glad to give you, and if you don't mind, we'll give you the third bouquet too. And if a woman realizes that a man gives her flowers, it means that he is not indifferent to her, he wants her, he trusts her, he believes in her, he loves her. (Konstantin Khabensky). And how it would be desirable to hear in the morning from your beloved man those very words that will inspire him and give an impetus to new achievements, that he is a man behind whom there is a wall of stone... But often, in the bustle of weekdays, we forget about it. And when in the evening, tired and exhausted, we remember that today we never heard gentle words from him, we are very offended. But we shouldn't waste precious time on offense, and it's worth giving it to ourselves! After all, he will be with another, who will pity him, kiss and cuddle. But, she will never understand him. He will be happy with her, but not with you. You shouldn't waste your life hating, it's better to love yourself and appreciate And what is love? Is it when you, no matter what, stay together, overcoming problems and obstacles, and others, having lost everything they had, break up? So what, it's not love, it's just passion and lust. And, what is love?
