Visualization Engineers: Who Are They, and How Do They Impact

Projects? The practice of visualization has been on the rise since the early 1980s. The enabling technologies are increasingly inexpensive and ubiquitous, although the discipline is still in its infancy. Over time, a small but very active community has developed that aims to define and scope the field. How does a visualization practice (i.e., methodology, tools, and skills) look, sound, and feel? How does it work, who does it, and how does it benefit the user? To help answer these questions, we set out to do a survey, which you can find here: published: 25 May 2017 Find out how Sysmex USA builds a strong business by offering innovative solutions to our customers! West Bank has dealt a blow to Palestinian peace efforts, but the prospect of direct talks between the US and Iran on the nuclear issue is more a hopeful sign for the Middle East than another deadlock. An Israeli government that is openly opposed to negotiations with its main Arab neighbours has been set back by the demand for a freeze of all settlement building in the West Bank and East Jerusalem. Announcing the decision, which was made public at the end of a week-long visit to Washington by the Israeli prime minister, Binyamin Netanyahu, Mr Netanyahu refused to discuss progress on the basis of the US-led Security Council resolution. The resolution, passed in December by the 15-member council, endorsed previous efforts by the Palestinians to restart long-stalled talks and demanded that Israel freeze all settlement activities in the occupied Palestinian territories. The resolution, which explicitly refers to the 1967 ceasefire lines in Israel and the occupied West Bank, condemned Jewish West Bank construction as a violation of international law. It came after the United Nations human rights chief, Navi Pillay, said there had been an "alarming" increase in settler violence, both violent and extrajudicial, against Palestinians. Mr Netanyahu's declaration on Wednesday suggests that an end to all settlement building is not yet possible. The Israeli prime minister said Israel would not negotiate on the basis of "one side" having agreed to freeze the issue. As well as Israel, the United States and the European Union have been pushing for a settlement freeze. President Barack Obama met President Mahmoud Abbas of the Palestinian Authority and called for an end to settlements, saying that they would undermine efforts to bring about a peace deal. In a statement released by the White House, Mr Obama described Israel's current construction as "the largest settlement enterprise in the 21st century". Mr Abbas repeated his insistence that any talks must be based on the pre-1967 ceasefire lines, which would require Israel to withdraw from the occupied
