Subscribe My friends over at the Charlotte Business Journal asked a few questions, some of which I've answered in a new feature they've published: How do the two compare? As a technology integration firm, tech sourcing and procurement professionals typically deal with a lot of companies. In our case, the largest of these is Apple. We're the company's key interface to developers in our area. As Apple's custom development partner, we serve as the liaison between the world's leading technology innovator and the local developer community. We connect our developers with Apple's mobile products and services, which include the iPhone, iPad and Apple TV, as well as iOS and iCloud. For over five years, we've worked closely with Apple to help the company reach new markets, enrich existing markets and refine their existing product line. In addition, we provide a level of expertise that the company cannot find in-house. The resources and training we provide to our developers are unmatched. Apple uses us as a trusted and easy source of experienced developers. How is the economy for the two in 2013? In January, Apple announced its highest number of iOS device activations ever at 7.9 million. Apple also achieved record shipments in the first quarter of 2013, exceeding one billion iOS devices for the first time. In January, sales of Apple's iPad, iPhone and Mac products surpassed $57 billion. For the year, the company surpassed $400 billion in annual revenue. For our industry, this provides a bump, but is not a game-changer. The level of iPhone usage in Charlotte is now in the hundreds of

What's New In AutoCAD?

Markup Assist: Use a variety of tools to quickly customize existing DWG/DXF files. (video: 1:30 min.) Drafting and Vaulting: Create accurate plans and sections by setting the scales of existing views. (video: 3:50 min.) Viewing and Searching: Easily view, compare, and annotate multiple DWG/DXF files at once. 3D Modeling: Design 3D models with faster and easier modeling tools. Function Drawing: Automatically create functions based on your drawings. Drawing Clips: Customize drawings with reusable drawing clips. Trapezoid Drawings: Draw "measure from" and "measure to" commands. Text Tools: Use Dynamic Text and QuickText to quickly create text. Scripting: Extend AutoCAD with custom Python and VBA scripts. Color Management: Ensure colors are consistent across your design. Powerful Collaboration Features: Teamwork and collaboration are easier than ever. And so much more... With the new features in AutoCAD 2023, you'll see a difference in your designs. Here are some of the major new features in AutoCAD 2023: Markup Assist – What can you do in AutoCAD without a drawing? AutoCAD 2023 includes a rich set of tools for viewing, annotating, and modifying existing drawings without the need to draw. With Markup Assist, you can convert a PDF, print, or web page into an editable DWG, DXF, or PDF file. You can quickly review, annotate, and adjust a drawing with edits saved to DWG/DXF files. You can even import your annotations from other applications into your drawing. In addition, all your markup from that drawing is automatically imported, and you can add in more annotations for use across multiple drawing files. Easily View, Compare, and Annotate Multiple DWG/DXF Files – AutoCAD 2023 includes new features to make viewing, comparing, and annotating multiple DWG/DXF files faster and easier than ever. You can use the new Left-Clicking and Right-Clicking features to navigate between drawings in
