The GUI looks a lot like AutoCAD but has tons of. xforce.Q: Can anyone explain this piece of code that I ran in MATLAB? I have understood most of the code but there is a line that I do not understand. In short, I am trying to get a specific row in a file based on some values in that row. I have the X values of the row that I need. for i = 1:4
fprintf('X_values of row %d : %f ', i, x_array(i)); fprintf('y_values of row %d : %f ', i, y_array(i)); w = x_array(i) - y_array(i); if w > 0 ind = i; break; end end I assume x_array and y_array are lists of the row numbers that I want to get.
Can someone explain the code in the for loop part. Thanks in advance! A: I think the relevant part in the question is: ind = i; Here ind is a number which you are looking for. So if I am right, that's what you are trying to do in the end. The rest is more complicated for you to understand. I am not going to post the entire code here. Hope it can help you. for i = 1:4
fprintf('X_values of row %d : %f ', i, x_array(i)); fprintf('y_values of row %d : %f ', i, y_array(i)); w = x_array(i) - y_array(i); if w > 0

For exposure times up to 500 seconds, the x-ray linearity of two x-ray/x-ray combinations was compared in terms of the ratio of the dose percentage, gradient, and theoretical percentage. The results show that a better combination was obtained when the combination of an x-ray film and a radiographic plate was used.Great news for the Badgers and Big Ten. Minnesota is coming off a blowout loss and the Gophers come to town with the worst (by any team's record) defense in the nation. The Minnesota offense is currently 10th in the country in scoring (57 points per game) and they're in the top five in turnover margin, field goal percentage and three-point percentage. The Badgers are also coming off a loss and have their worst defense in the Big Ten. And it 3e33713323
