Current product versions of AutoCAD are available for the Microsoft Windows, macOS, and Linux operating systems, as well as iOS and Android mobile devices. AutoCAD 2020, for example, is offered as a desktop application, an online app, and as a web application. Mobile apps for Android, Windows, and iOS and a web app for iOS, Windows, and macOS can be installed on a mobile device and used in offline mode. In 2019, AutoCAD received approximately 2 million new users. This article shows how to connect to a protected network and open AutoCAD 2020, using public clouds and web services. It includes detailed instructions for connecting to AutoCAD using a mobile device or by using a web browser. Autodesk provides virtual private networks (VPNs) for its applications. These VPNs use Virtual Private Servers (VPSes) provided by Autodesk's partners. You can use the Autodesk VPNs provided by Autodesk partners only when connected to a partner's VPS. AutoCAD provided on a partner's VPS is not available for use by the public. Autodesk provides a Public Internet Desktop (PID) service as an alternative to the Autodesk VPN. With this service, you can use a Virtual Private Network (VPN) tunnel to connect to Autodesk applications such as AutoCAD. The PID service uses a SOCKS proxy server. The following procedure assumes that you have: A recently purchased Microsoft Windows PC that runs a version of Microsoft Windows 10 Home (, for example). A recently purchased, functioning, and active Internet connection that is configured for use with a device (mobile device or computer). The Autodesk VPN portal (accessible via the Autodesk website) in order to connect to your Autodesk account and allow Autodesk to authenticate you. AutoCAD 2020 installed and running on your PC. Access to the Autodesk VPN portal (accessible via the Autodesk website) to connect to your Autodesk account. Establishing Connection To access the PID service, you can use one of the public clouds that Autodesk has partnered with. In particular, there is a provision available for users of the Microsoft Azure cloud to use the PID service. You can download and run a Microsoft Azure web browser to connect to

The prognosis of patients starting antiretroviral therapy (ART) depends in part on whether they are naive or experience treatment failure. Treatment failure may be due to poor compliance, non-adherence or toxicity. Once a patient has experienced treatment failure, the question arises whether further therapy would be beneficial. Second-line therapy may be needed for drug-related toxicity, long-term viral suppression, patient's choice, presence of lipodystrophy, or high viral load levels. The drug used to treat this may also have a potential role in its own right. Even if, in the future, second-line therapy becomes available for use in all patients, induction therapy may still be helpful for a variety of reasons. The two-judge panel in the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit in San Francisco overturned a lower court's decision to allow the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program to continue. The administration had asked the court to reverse its decision. The court had previously ordered a halt to the program while it considered a challenge by the state of California, as well as by other parties. The Trump administration announced the end of DACA in September. The program has enabled about 750,000 young undocumented immigrants, called "Dreamers," to work and attend college without fear of deportation. U.S. District Judge William Alsup in Oakland, California, had blocked the administration from ending the program, but the appeals court in its 2-1 ruling said the administration must now prove its case that the program is unlawful. In its ruling, the court said the federal government had failed to show that Congress, not the president, had the power to decide how many immigrants to accept under the DACA program. The DACA program was created by former President Barack Obama in 2012, but Trump campaigned in 2016 on a pledge to end it. "We are pleased with this decision by the Court of Appeals. DACA is unconstitutional and Congress should pass a bill to help solidify the border and to ensure that those granted DACA protection are treated fairly and equally," White House spokeswoman Sarah Huckabee Sanders told a briefing. She said the administration would "strongly consider" whether to seek Supreme Court review. A federal court in Texas has also blocked the Trump
