----- Our
Barcode Fonts use 16bit ASCII, making it a part of a complete barcode solutions. This 16bit ASCII is augmented with color and/or line drawings to make your barcode attractive and easy to read. You may use any barcode font you like, but we recommend the use of our installed fonts. We have installed over 35 barcode fonts in the library and they are well distributed. Note: The more fonts that you install, the better organized the website will be. This also includes the ability to install more fonts that we have not yet listed. Because the fonts we have installed are so well balanced and represented, we believe that it is better to have fewer fonts installed and organized than having many fonts that are poorly represented and balanced. Installing our Fonts: ----- Each font is available in all the popular languages. To install your font, simply click on the name of the font in the list below. A new section will open with the font installed for you. For ease of use, we have made it easy to manage your fonts. Click on the "Library" tab and you can check-out, check-in and remove fonts. The fonts are installed into the C:/Fonts directory of your hard drive. Graphic Barcode Versions: ----- UPC is the standard for barcodes in America. It is mostly used for retail transactions. The number of digits in the UPC is shown by a red border in our UPC Font. Code 3 of 9 is used mostly in Europe. When a UPC is accompanied by a Code 3, the barcode is "QR" encoded. Code 2 of 5 is used mainly in Europe. A Code 2 barcode is the same as Code 3 of 9 barcode. For more information on these Barcodes, go to or *

---

- * These fonts are in the public domain.
- * The fonts are free to install and use.
- * In order to make these fonts even better, we have included a variety of line and/or color schemes for each barcode to help you pick the right format for your needs.
