I have already downloaded Google Chrome. It has started telling me to download it again when I open, but I'm not sure how to set it up correctly.Â . A: You do not need any software to install the Google Chrome. Just download it from official site. Open it, wait until you see the Google logo at the top-right corner of your Chrome window. It will then ask for you to "allow" it to install some programs. Click the "Allow" and it will install it, without asking again. All the current versions of Android have been tested to ensure that they are compatible with our Thunderbolt Base and Lightning Base AS, however once you upgrade to a newer version of Android we cannot guarantee that we have tested it. If your device is equipped with USB Type-C, Lightning, or Thunderbolt (Base, AS, Pro, and Pro X), you will no longer be able to use the stock microSD card adapter to expand storage. For the record, these adapters won't work either on non-Thunderbolt/Lightning/USB-C devices. Backing Up and Restoring At this time, the details of backing up are not well established; however we will release more information as we can. Our Lightning Base AS is the only iOS device that can be used to backup and restore an iPhone 5/5s/SE. The Lightning Base can be used for backup but cannot be used for restore. Some legacy features may not be available, in part because they were only available on the iOS side of the device. For example, iOS does not allow users to move apps from their list of installed apps to a folder. We hope that we'll be able to restore previous backups once we have more information, but it is possible that we can't. You can get a pop-up message warning you that you need to restore from backup after you insert a microSD card. Before you decide to backup your data, you may want to consider a backup service which synchronizes data between your devices and the cloud (either on your end or Apple's). Lyles, West Memphis, for appellant. Steve Clark, Atty. Gen. by William W. Webb, Asst. Atty. Gen., Little Rock, for appellee. HICKMAN, Justice. Charlie Hudson, appellant, was found guilty of capital felony murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. He raises five points for reversal and the first is that the trial court should not have permitted the State to impeach him with four prior felony convictions. Appellant was first charged with capital felony murder in 1970 but the court granted a change of venue and appellant was tried in Monroe County. The jury found him guilty and he was sentenced to life imprisonment. The conviction was appealed and this court reversed the trial court for not finding, under Rule 8.2(a), that appellant received a fair and impartial trial in the county where he was tried. Hudson v. State, 258 Ark. 531, 528 S.W.2d 362 (1975). We found that the trial court had been impermissibly influenced by the county citizens and that there was a feeling of racial discrimination in the county. Appellant was retried. At the trial, no reference was made to the prior trial and the only testimony about that trial was on cross-examination of the defendant when he was asked if he had confessed to the murder on April 30, 1970. Appellant answered, "Yes, sir." The State was entitled to impeach Hudson by showing the conviction of crime upon which the sentence of life imprisonment was based, Pugh v. State, 244 Ark. 1239, 447 S.W.2d 711 ( 3e33713323
